<td>Sidestepping a Misstep: Dealing with Pathological Clauses</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Forty years since Frederic Eisemann coined the phrase “pathological clauses,” such clauses continue to plague contracts and, more often than not, create significant impediments to the arbitral process. Join our panel of contract-drafters, counsel, arbitrators and former judges for a comprehensive review of the ramifications and possible remedies of dealing with a “pathological” clause.</td>

<td>Legitimate Strategy or Abusive Conduct: The Place for Obstructive Parties in Arbitration</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>We’ve all come across them, but do you know how to deal with obstructive parties? This session will examine typical tactics adopted by recalcitrant parties and examine several topical issues including: (1) are tribunals constrained by a fear of how a supervisory or enforcing court might react; and (2) do parties have a right to choose to attack a tribunal’s procedure or jurisdiction only at the enforcement stage.</td>

<tr>
<td></td>
<td>What unique issues might parties face when engaging in a dispute against sovereigns and SOEs in Asia? This session will survey the growth of investment arbitration in Asia, probe issues of jurisdiction and immunity, reflect on the effect of BIT renunciations, and gaze into the crystal ball and foretell the future of the next generation of BITs.</td>

<td>Should Arbitration Lawyers be Retooling as ADR Practitioners? The Growing Demand for Dispute Prevention and ADR</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>The increase in cost, time, cultural issues and procedural complexity in arbitration is now, unfortunately, well known. While the arbitration community has made substantial efforts to improve the effectiveness of the international arbitration framework, users are increasingly seeking alternatives to avoid and resolve disputes. This session will examine trends in dispute prevention and ADR by State and corporate users in the Asian region and how this may impact on the future practice of arbitration.</td>
