Human Oversight in AI Decision-Making: Legal Compliance and Practical Strategies

26 June, 2025 - 09:00 (Milan) • 15:00 (Hong Kong) • 16:00 (Tokyo)

AI tools are showing up in more parts of legal work: drafting, reviewing, analyzing. But while the technology is moving fast, the responsibility still sits with you. This webinar is about what that really means.

In this fireside chat, we'll discuss how lawyers can stay in control of AI-assisted work, make sure decisions meet legal and ethical standards, and avoid common pitfalls that come from relying too much (or too little) on automation.

You don't need to be a tech expert. You do need to understand how to guide the process, ask the right questions, and set up oversight systems that make sense for your practice. Attendees will leave this webinar with:

- A clear framework for human review. Practical steps for deciding when and how lawyers should step in during AI-driven tasks.
- Examples of what works (and what doesn't). Real stories from legal teams using AI in areas like contracts and risk analysis, plus where they've had to adjust.
- Tools for reducing legal exposure. Ways to document oversight, validate outputs, and keep your practice compliant without creating unnecessary friction.

Be sure to bring your burning questions on risk and responsibility—there'll be plenty of time for Q&A after Eunice and Riccardo's chat.
